THE PRICE OF A PICTURE.

Snow-storm snow! All the morning over that peaceful, little town it had fallen steadily and unceasingly.

How the little old clock in the parlor struck the hour of twelve.

And higher yet and the chills of Autumn, the year upon her face, and the snow upon her hair.

And even thus upon the great winter wonder, the snow upon the roof, the snow upon the trees.

They all knew the rest of the story. Of the ten happy years spent by the little old clock in the parlor.

She stood in the white light, and she looked at the clock, and she looked at the clock.

There was twenty years older when one day, all artistic London was thrilled and startled into admiration of a picture.

A wonderful piece of coloring that it was the terrible story of an action told on canvas.

A Blash with A Knife.

What came near being a throat-cutting affair occurred early this morning in the office of the St. Nicholas hotel, immediately after the participating parties had taken breakfast. The disputants were four men, said to be railway men, who had arrived at the hotel this morning from the east, having been awake all night and plying their vocation no doubt. Three of the party of four registered as E. J. Mason and James Martin, of Springfield, and J. A. Hankins, of Peoria. The other man did not register, and he and Hankins quarreled in the office about a division of some money. Threats were made, but no blows were struck. Hankins had a pen-knife in his hand, and when the unknown man came near the former threw up his hand and the point of the knife cut a long but not deep gash under the right jaw of the stranger in dangerous proximity to the jugular vein. Immediately bystanders interfered and hostilities ceased at once. The four alleged gamblers left the hotel without delay, and have probably left the city. The row was simply a "family affair."

300 CONVERSIONS.

The Harrison Meetings Growing in Interest and Power.

The usual large number of people filled the spacious audience room at the First M. E. church last night, where was witnessed, if anything, a deeper and more general interest in the religious revival, which has caused so great an awakening in this and neighboring cities.

The young revivalist, Rev. Thomas Harrison, selected for his theme, "What more can I do?" based on the fourth verse in the fifth chapter of Isaiah, and spoke with great power and effect, moving the vast congregation by his burning words of warning and tender appeals very noticeably. There was the usual large number of seekers at the altar, including many adults. A considerable number of the seekers professed conversion, thus swelling the number to 300 saved in less than three weeks. The afternoon and evening meetings will be continued until further notice.

Reporters and Religion.

The Lincoln Journal man seems to be considerably worried about the spiritual welfare of the Decatur newspaper men, though according to Rev. Horace Reed there are 37 scribblers in that town and only one of them is a professing Christian. The Journal of last Saturday says: "The clergy seem to be as powerless over us Rev. Reed is here. So far we have not heard of a printer, publisher or reporter being converted, and yet Rev. Harrison is laboring there. Religious conviction must soon strike the press gang of that city or else Decatur will become the modern Gomorrah. We fear McLean, Young and Snyder are beyond redemption."

We don't know how it is with the Journal man, but it is a fact that Mr. Harrison and a number of the good brethren and sisters in the fold do not slight the Decatur reporters. At the revival meetings, if they don't skip out to gobble an item at a ball or some other equally "bad place," they too come in for a share of personal solicitation to give up their little gods and be born again. And this is all right. We hope that after all the Decatur scribes experience a change of heart that not only Lincoln but all the benighted scribblers at Chicago and elsewhere may be brought into the fold.

A GOULD number of the legal luminaries witnessed the play of "State's Attorney" as given by the John Dillon combi-nation at the opera house last night. The audience which made up the jury was large and appreciative. It was feared by some that Dillon, owing to his usual disposition, would not appear, but he did, and walked through his part in a swaggering, careless manner, omitting, no doubt, whole pages of his lines. John wasn't very well last night. He had a cold, or was troubled with either dizziness or heart disease, or perhaps it was Bud-weiser or sour mash that made him cough so much and jumble his words so that the articulation was dreadfully imperfect. The supporting company is very good. Miss Nellie Walters, as Tracy, Miss Macdonald, as Prudence, and Mr. Robyns, as Reuben, are deserving of special mention. Of course Dillon was funny, but he wasn't in a condition to do himself and the legal profession justice.

This noon Gilbert Vernon, colored found his 12-year-old son and a white boy of the same age in a beastly state of intoxication on one of the streets near the old square. Both boys were in a sad plight and had been wallowing in the mud. Mr. Vernon endeavored to ascertain where his boy had obtained the whisky, but the boy was so badly intoxicated that he could make no explanation. This is one of the cases that should be investigated at once by the grand jury now in session, and the party who gave or sold the boys whisky should be indicted and prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. Mr. Vernon had to take his boy home.

PROF. H. NILSSON, who has been playing with Goodman's orchestra for some time past, but who has severed his connection with that organization, has a card in another column expressing his willingness to receive pupils in instrumental music. We have been permitted to examine some of Mr. Nilsson's testimonials, from which it appears that he has had great success in other places, and is an excellent teacher.

To-day the temporary poor house was vacated by Steward Magee and the paupers, all the effects and charges being removed to the new buildings on the poor farm. A Princely Banquet.

The grand opening of "Morgan's Palace Exchange" at the Palace Hotel last evening attracted about 500 people, all of whom partook of a sumptuous free supper served in the hotel dining room, a considerable distance from the gorgeously decorated saloon and billiard parlor. Among the guests were about 25 ladies. The banquet was one of the finest and most expensive spreads that the Palace caterers and money could provide. It included oysters, turkey, chicken, cold meats, hot coffee, and all the accessories, together with a liberal supply of toothsome cakes and confections. There were two long tables and three short ones in the dining hall, on which were plates for 100 persons. Five hundred persons were fed and none went away hungry.

A Beautiful Banner.

Last evening the writer was shown a grandly beautiful banner worth $75, recently purchased by Cour de Leon Lodge No. 17, Knights of Pythias. This banner is made of the best material obtainable; blue, gold and crimson silk, which signify the different degrees in the subordi-nate lodge. The emblem is hung upon a spear tipped staff and is richly trimmed and decorated with gold tassels, such sparkling emeralds, deep fringe, expensive tassels, and other pretty adornments that add to the general striking beauty of the gorgeous banner. The Knights of "Charity, Friendship and Benevolence" are now prepared to make a fine appearance in future, as they now have a splendid banner and new uniforms and swords.

First-Class Organs.

It is not generally known by the people of Macon county, but it is true nevertheless that the only first-class organ for sale in the county is the Estey, kept only by John S. Sargent, at Macon. While he does not deny that there are some good instruments for sale in Decatur, he claims that there is not an organ from a standard maker for sale in the city. It stands the purchaser in hand to buy the best every time, especially when it costs no more than an inferior article. Mr. Sargent is not selling "at less than factory prices," nor does he claim to do so. A business man cannot sell goods for less than cost, send out traveling men at an average expense of $2500 per year, pay store rent, &c., &c., and pay his debts. He cannot do it and be honest; some one would have to suffer. If you are going to buy either a piano or an organ, you can get the best made and save money, too, by dealing with Mr. Sargent. Write to him for catalogue and full particulars. Dec. 19 d&w1

A Statement.

Mr. Albert Morgan, proprietor of the Palace Exchange saloon, paid the Revue-Lucas a call to-day, and authorized us to state that he did not write the following or expect its publication in the Decatur Herald of Sunday morning:

"ALL INVITED."

Gentlemen and ladies homeward bound from the Harrison revival services at the First M. E. Church to-morrow night, are respectfully and cordially invited to drop in at the opening of Al. Morgan's Palace Exchange, and take supper.

Mr. Morgan does not wish to cast any slur upon any society, religious or otherwise. Mr. Harrison, or any one else. His chief aim, he says, is to mind his own business. He hopes that the above explanation will set himself right before those people who have censured him for the publication of a notice which he did not write and did not see in the Herald until Sunday evening.

SOME months ago an old citizen died in Decatur. He was a vendor of milk and had six cows on his lot that cold, rainy evening he died, and they needed feeding and milking. There were no young men or boys in the family, the only one able to do anything being a grown daughter. The pastor of the church of which the deceased had long been a consistent member, was at the bedside of the dying man, and held his hand as his spirit took its flight for the realms above. Before departing the minister learned of the condition of things about the house. He is a practical christian, and realizing the situation he volunteered to feed the cows and milk them, and did so, thus relieving the bereaved family of much concern, and performing a service that will add stars to his crown in the other world. This clergyman is taking an active part in the revival services.

Christmas Gifts.

Ladies and others who admire celluloid toilet sets, richly trimmed in plush, satin and silk, should call at W. C. Armstrong's and examine the Christmas goods in the show cases at his drug store. The array embraces all the very latest novelties, and was selected specially for the holiday trade. Mr. Armstrong also has in stock a big assortment of the best perfumery, toilet soap, etc. Call at Armstrong's for holiday presents, at low prices. 13-d&w1

Prof. Goodman is no better. He has had a relapse and suffers terribly from heart disease and gripping pains. He is greatly reduced in flesh and requires constant attention.

Plinski on Sunday morning, resided in Macon county a few years ago, and was at the time of his death a subscriber to the REVUE-LUCAS. MARRIED.

At Decatur, Ill., on Monday, Dec. 18, 1882, at the residence of Mr. S. K. Bodman, by Rev. A. W. Ringold, Mr. L. L. UNDERWOOD, of Decatur, and Miss ANNA McKEITHEN, of Decatur.

The happy groom is a Decatur printer, and all members of the "art preservative" unite in wishing him and his fair bride joy unlimited. Mr. Underwood and bride arrived in the city last evening and were given an informal reception at the home of the groom's mother, Mrs. S. A. Underwood, on North Water street, where a fine wedding repast was dispensed and the young couple received the hearty congratulations of Decatur friends. A number of useful gifts were bestowed. Among those present at the reception were Dr. and Mrs. J. S. King, Mrs. A. Sutton, Mrs. S. J. Fulton and Misses Laura and Belle Fulton, Mr. and Mrs. Z. T. Pope, Mrs. S. M.
